Good With Young Children

Yes

Comments (Young Children)

Berg lives the young children in the neighborhood! Whenever we are out when they are he wants to see them and get pets from them. My roommate's girlfriend also has a 3 year old that comes over sometimes and he loves to follow her around and try to play with her.

Turn Out Routine

Turn our to pee first thing in the morning followed by breakfast, and then a full potty walk after. Crates for the work day as for as long as needed that day. Turn out to pee when coming out of the crate. Full potty after dinner. Turn out to pee before bed.

Potty On Lead

Yes

Garbage

He shows some interest, but is easily corrected. We have a lidded trash can to keep the hounds out.

Stairs

He can do the 3 steps into our house no problem. He's learned to wait at the bottom until we call him up.

Floors

No issues on our laminate floors in the kitchen.

When is the hound crated?

- 8 Hour Work Day

How does the hound handle being crated?

He goes in willingly every time. When leaving the house he will cry for a little, but we can see on the camera that he quiets quickly and stays quiet even upon return. He needs to go out to potty anytime he is let out of the crate.

What does the hound enjoy?

Berg enjoys his humans. He loves to get pets and affection from the people of the home. He's happiest with his face shoved in your armpit. He also loves food and is treat motivated.

Does the hound have any fears?

Berg can take a moment to warm to strangers in public (unless they're kids), and doesn't like to let people he doesn't know get behind him. Otherwise he's pretty fearless.

What type of temperament does the hound have? (Shy, outgoing, confident, etc.)

Berg is a big softy. He's excitable and sweet. Somewhere in-between shy and outgoing. He's just a fun guy.

How does the hound handle new situations?

Berg is a little reserved in new situations, but eventually warms up.
